

STOBS MILITARY CAMP
HAWICK IN THE SCOTTISH BORDERS

Transcript of interview between Ian Landles, Andrew Jepson and Reene Currie, 21st April 2016
With the kind permission of Ian Landles and Reene Currie's family

Andrew Jepson

You have fond memories of Stobs Camp?

Reene Currie

Oh yes, yes. And I loved when the horses were in. They were there, well at the outbreak of war there was horses in Stobs. Cavalry was still on the go then, there wasn't much in the way of mechanised transport, it was all horses.

Andrew Jepson

Can you imagine your childhood without Stobs Camp around you?

Reene Currie

No because we were there a long, long time. And my father, father's family I think there were oh, four, either four or five generations of them. Aye.

Ian Landles

And at Winnington Rig you had probably about the best view in the Borders, you had 360 degree panorama right round.

Reene Currie

[Chuckles]. It was great.
