

STOBS MILITARY CAMP
HAWICK IN THE SCOTTISH BORDERS

Transcript of interview between Ian Landles, Andrew Jepson and Walter Oliver, 5 Sept 2017
With the kind permission of Ian Landles and Walter Oliver

Walter Oliver

And there was also a time in the cemetery when some of the stones were actually starting to crumble and, you know, there was couple of them, sort of halved through the middle and things, and probably a bit vandalised. And they replaced them with white wooden crosses.

Andrew Jepson

That was before '62?

Walter Oliver

That was before the whole lot was dug up.

Ian Landles

What was your feeling about the whole thing, did you think they should have been left where they were?

Walter Oliver

I think, erm, no I think taking the bodies away was probably a good thing. If the place had been looked after it would have been okay leaving them.